

Biographical Sketch: Margaret Olivia Little
Jan. 2006

Maggie Little is a Senior Research Scholar at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics and an Associate Professor in the Philosophy Department at Georgetown University. She has published on a broad range of topics in ethics, from moral epistemology and moral realism to applied issues in bioethics. She is the co-editor, with Brad Hooker, of Moral Particularism (Oxford University Press, 2000), and is currently finishing a book, with the same press, entitled Intimate Duties: Re-Thinking Abortion, the Law, and Morality.